

Partnering With WISE

The Windward Islands School of Evangelism has several ways to partner with it beyond prayers and financial support. This semester W.I.S.E. is hosting Stan Wohlenhaus, a retired professor from Ozark; Becky Doran, a campus minister on loan from the Christian Campus House at Mizzou; and Marisa Romero, from Portland, OR who is serving as our preschool intern. In addition to those three we will host several adjunct professors throughout the semester that come to teach at W.I.S.E. for three week stints. All have chosen to partner with us by lending us their time and talents in and out of the classroom.

WISE also welcomes groups! We have had church small groups, college ministries, youth ministries and others offer their time, service, and skills to partner with us on work projects, on outreach efforts, and hosting recruiting retreats. All of these people—groups, adjuncts, interns and volunteers are critical to our ministry here at WISE. With only four full-time staff members it would be impossible to do all that we are doing without those willing to partner with us and help the ministry of WISE to take place. Whether in the classroom here at the college, in the preschool, the school office, on a construction project, or holding a retreat, the partners giving of their time and talents are a great help and encouragement to us.

For more information about teaching at WISE as a three-week adjunct or for a semester, or for information about internships and bringing groups please contact us at wisemissions@gmail.com.

Above is the new class of WISE preschoolers. 16 students are starting off the year. We are thankful to have an intern, Miss Marisa, joining us this semester from Mountainview Christian Church to help at the preschool.

Meet a Student

Randolph Williams, from St. Vincent, is excited to study the word of God more in depth. The hardest part for him is giving up family to be here, but he feels strongly God's love brought him here. He is eager to train others to love God after he trains at WISE. In just 2 weeks here, he has learned to be kinder, pray more, and worry less.

Bro Stan Wohlenhaus- former OCC staff
Sis Claudette-overseeing the kitchen
Sis Becky-on loan from Mizzou CCH, helping with much, especially reconnecting with alumni
Bro Brice- Director & professor
Bro Matthias-part-time electronics
Sis Angie- secretary & professor
Bro John- Maintenance man

Our students at WISE Bible College this year. It took a few extra days for some of our Jamaican students to get here, but we are all together for this time!

A New Semester at WISE!

God provides again! We continually see Him providing when giving is down. We see God moving as He equips our former 1st years to now become leaders in the student body. We see God working in bringing a group at the perfect time to come and help get WISE ready for school to start. And we just got to see God bring new students to WISE again.

Two months ago we had many students say they were coming, but no applications. Two weeks until school started and no flight itineraries for students coming, since our Liat airlines was having so many problems. And then as school started we were excited to have such a wide range of students from various countries and ages.

Our students are busy learning memory, new study tips, work study habits in the kitchen, schoolyard, and with their books. And though they range from age nineteen to fifty-seven years old the amazing thing to see is their love for the Lord unifying them. Already you can see them giving encouragement to one another, praying together, and praising God while waiting out another storm in this rainy season here.

We hope you can catch a glimpse in our newsletters of these great servants studying here. Better yet, we'd love to have you plan a trip with your church and partner in a retreat with us and our graduates to recruit more Godly leaders for the Caribbean and the world.
